Baria/Sherman senate runoff scheduled for next Tuesday

BY GEOFF BELCHER
NEWS EDITOR

There's another election coming up in less than a week -- state Rep. David Baria will square off against Howard Sherman next Tuesday in the Democratic primary runoff for U.S. Senate.

Baria and Sherman ran neck-and-neck in the June 5 primary election, which saw a crowded field of six candidates. In Hancock County, Baria was the clear winner, earning 1,110 votes to Sherman's 50. However, state-wide, Sherman scored the lead, with 27,358 votes -- or 31.9 percent; and Baria earned 26,568 votes, or 31 percent. Their next-closest opponent was Baria's fellow state legislator Omeria Scott, who earned 20,642 votes, or 24.1 percent.

"We had a really low turnout for the first primary," Hancock Circuit Clerk Karen Ladner Ruhr said Tuesday. "We're really hoping people get this runoff on their radar and get out and vote. We'll have 25 precincts open -- it will be a long day."

Ruhr said anyone who voted in the Democratic primary on June 5 may vote again next Tuesday; as can anyone who did not

"The only people who can't vote is the ones who voted Republican" in the primary, Ruhr said.

The candidates:

Baria is a Democratic member of the Mississippi House of Representatives, representing District 122. He was first elected to the chamber in 2011.

Baria served in the Mississippi State Senate, representing District 46 from 2008 to 2012.

Baria earned his B.S. from the University of Southern Mississippi in 1987, and J.D. from the University of Mississippi in 1990. His professional experience includes working as an attorney and CEO of Rhino Construction.

Baria is the Chairman of the NCSL Gulf and Atlantic States Task Force. He is also a member of the National Conference of Environmental Legislators, Bay St. Louis Rotary Club, Kiwanis Club, Leadership Hancock County, Mississippi Bar and a Fellow of the Mississippi Bar Foundation.

Baria was born in Pascagoula on December 4, 1962. He is married to the former Marcie Fyke; they have three children Merritt, Bess and Max.

He is a member of Christ Episcopal Church in Bay St. Louis.

HANCOCK SUPERS FEAR BEING 'RAILROADED' INTO $1M DOLLAR INVESTMENT IN AMTRAK SERVICE

Governor wants Coast counties to offer matching funds

BY CASSANDRA FAVRE
STAFF WRITER

John R. Smith, chairman of Transportation for America, on Monday spoke to the Hancock County Board of Supervisors about Gov. Phil Bryant's recent request for matching funds from the three coastal counties for restoring passenger rail service to the Gulf Coast.

Hancock County's portion would about $1 million, he said.

Smith said that he provides policy advice to the Southern Rail Commission, which was created by Congress to support freight and passenger rail issues in Louisiana, Mississippi and Alabama.

After Hurricane Katrina, "we lost all passenger rail," Smith said.

The Southern Rail Commission ran a demonstration train about two-and-a-half-years ago, he said, which stopped in Bay St. Louis.

Smith said Sen. Roger Wicker and Sen. Thad Cochran then created the Gulf Coast Working Group, chaired by the Federal Railroad Administration. Amtrak, CSX and representatives from New Orleans to Jacksonville, FL. were included as well, he added.

The working group was tasked with figuring out what bringing back passenger rail service would "look like," Smith said. The information -- which included costs -- was presented to Congress, he said. The study took about 18 months.

"They brought back the type of service that should be run," Smith said. "They brought back a unanimous report, but for one member, as to what the physical improvements should be to the rail line. The one dissenting vote was CSX, who said they needed $2.3 billion worth of investment in their railroad. The Federal Railroad Administration and the Coast Guard reviewed CSX's numbers and found them baseless."

Smith said there was about $12.7 million worth of infrastructure work in passing sites between Bay St. Louis and New Orleans.
"The report said, let's run two trains a day between New Orleans and Mobile," Smith said. "So Bay St. Louis will get four passenger trains a day and will run between eight in the morning and eight in the evening. That report was brought back to Congress and Congress accepted that report."
Smith said that Wicker and Cochran created "two funding streams," one to pay for capital expense for crossing and passing sites and another stream to operate the train for the first three years and "created ways for us to apply for the money."
"That time has come now for us to apply for that money," Smith said.
Smith also added that Gov. Bryant requested a financial analysis of the economic impact passenger rail service would have on the coastal counties.
"The Trent Lott National Center at the University of Mississippi did the analysis," he said. "Their impact to Hancock County for the $12.75 million that will be built between here and New Orleans to ensure proper movement of freight and passengers. The rail construction alone, which will take about three years, will bring back to this county about $5.49 million."
"The governor needs to know that you support this effort and this connection," Smith said.
He also added that passenger rail service would not negatively impact the Hancock County Port and Harbor.
Hancock County Board of Supervisors President Blaine LaFontaine told Smith that since taking office in February 2016, which was when Amtrak completed its tour, the board had not received correspondence from anyone with Amtrak or the Southern Rail Commission, until last Friday.

"I don't think anyone up here has not pledged support throughout the course of that two-and-a-half-years," LaFontaine said. "However, I had my first phone call Friday afternoon with a representative from the Southern Rail Commission. Where this conversation has seemed to change, that now of the $14.8 million that needs to be state matched, now the governor's office is saying that he needs the three coastal counties to pledge 50 percent of that match."
First, Smith said, the governor has asked that the counties show support for the project.
"One is the three counties ask the governor to use readily available funds, which the governor has, RESTORE Act being one, to make the state's commitment," Smith said.
Smith added that Amtrak is contributing $5 million to Mississippi for the train service.
"The other, is the governor is asking for 50 percent of that, which for Hancock County would be $975,000," Smith said.
LaFontaine said that "was not the number" he was told on Friday.
"I was told Friday afternoon at 6 p.m., which was the first time I heard about this, was that they were asking Hancock County to pledge 16 percent or $1.2 million," he said. "Harrison County at 60 percent or about $4.5 million and Jackson County at 24 percent or abbot $1.7 million. Two-and-a-half-years of conversation, now coming in at the last minute with an application due by June 21, now coming to tell Hancock County in order to get this we need you to put in $1.2 million. A county of our size being able to identify $1.2 million just to restore Amtrak, I can't pledge support for something financially and leverage my county's taxpayer future on something that for two-and-a-half years conversation, we had never been told there would be a financial contribution."
LaFontaine said he didn't disagree with the Trent Lott

National Center's projections, but they're "clearly projections."
LaFontaine added that he's always viewed it as the state's responsibility to provide the matching funds.
Smith said that he understood the board's "frustration with the last-minute request from the governor's office."
"That request was made within the past week, week-and-a-half," he said. "What I would ask you to do is act favorable on the resolution of support. I think if he felt strong support from the three coastal counties for him to make the commitment, I think there is a good chance he could make that commitment."
Supervisor David Yarborough said that if "we pledge support and the governor goes ahead and makes his deal, he's going to be looking down here at these counties for our end."
Smith said the resolution he's asking the board does not ask for any funding commitment.
"It's asking the governor to make a commitment of state funds," Smith said.
LaFontaine said that the resolution talks about pledging financial contribution.
"I don't mind pledging support, but financially, that's where our hesitation has been," he said.
Smith asked the board to consider approving a resolution that does not include the financial match.
"If we pledge support to the governor for this project," Yarborough said, "he's going to move forward and then he's going to be looking at us for funds. I'm not going to do it. I've been sitting here 14 years and I've heard these stories over and over. If we put $1.2 million into this and 12 years of trying to recoup. How many times can we keep doing this? Investing money, expecting it to come back in 10-20 years from now."
Smith said the payback is about seven years if the county makes a financial commitment.
The board took no official action on the matter.
LaFontaine said Tuesday that the railroad discussion was not advertised on the board's agenda, nor was there a motion to amend the agenda to include the railroad discussion.

"So, I don't think we could have taken any action anyway," LaFontaine said. "Our biggest concern is pledging taxpayer dollars, which would be about 2 1/2 mils for Amtrak services."
LaFontaine said that for the board to make a decision, it would require more work and questions.

Revisiting Veterans PTSD Suicides

Over the years, my son's health worsened," Mary Daigle told me. "Constant negative stress took a terrible toll on my 39-year-old son Selby's mind and body, causing anxiety attacks, neuropathy, muscle disorder, chronic insomnia, eventually breaking down his immune system, his kidneys and his heart. He spent a year in Michael E. DeBakey Veterans Affairs Medical Center in Houston. When low self-esteem, mental anguish and physical pain were more than he could bear, he took his own life by hanging." This sorrowful narrative about the son of Farice and Mary Daigle woke me up.

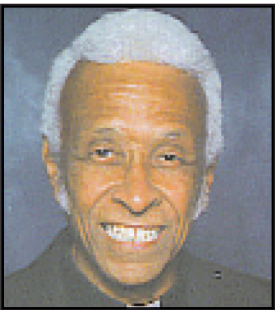

A quote from my November 21, 2016 column reads: "Every day we lose 22 veterans to suicide; that is, one every 65 minutes." Although there is some quibbling about 22 or 20 suicides daily, neither one is tolerable. These numbers are from the Department of Veterans Affairs (DVA) study that analyzed veteran suicide data from 1999 to 2010, then reported in February, 2013 on veteran suicide rates in the United States. Even though veterans number about 1 in 10 of adults, they are about 1 in 5 of suicides." That does not even sound real, does it? These horrible tragedies are happening in our midst endlessly from one day to another.

Yet, so jarring are these numbers that the daily toll causes us to grow callused, unaware and unfeeling from the numbing, overwhelming volume of tragedy. It takes the surreal suicide of a highly successful woman like Kate Spade to jolt us back into reality. A renowned fashion designer and businesswoman who had it all, Kate stunned the world by apparently hanging herself. Her grief-stricken husband, Andy Spade, moaned, "Kate suffered from depression and anxiety for many years. She was actively seeking help and working closely with her doctors to treat her disease, one that takes far too many lives." That is scary, to say the least.

This certainly jolts us back to the plight of our beleaguered PTSD veterans. On June 8, 2018 – 3 days after Kate Spade – globe-trotting, celebrity chef, author, travel documentarian and TV personality Anthony Bourdain took his life. Being a celebrity or any kind of big success does not make one immune to the darkness brought on by mental illness. Don't be fooled by the glamorous, deceptive public persona of those possessed by the demon of depression. Again, it takes us back to our veterans, leaving in our bowels a cavernously-empty feeling and uneasiness about the depressing battles of countless people of every walk and status in life.

Copycat suicides are a real danger as was seen in the 10 percent increase in suicides in the 5 months after the shocking suicide of Robin Williams in 2010. On the other hand, after the anguishing news about Kate Spade and Anthony Bourdain, a handful of celebrities have come out of the closet, confessing their own terrible, potentially deadly struggles with clinical depression over the years. Some progress!

Cast your votes for David Baria

EDITORIAL

Mississippi Rep. David Baria of Bay St. Louis will square off against former actor and venture capitalist Howard Sherman next Tuesday, June 26, in the Democratic primary runoff election to determine who will face incumbent U.S. Sen. Roger Wicker in November.

We rarely endorse any candidate in any election, but we feel the need to urge everyone who is eligible to vote next week to cast their ballots for David Baria.

If you are a registered elector and voted in the Democratic primary earlier this month or if you didn't vote in either primary, you are eligible to vote next Tuesday.

Regardless of your political beliefs, we believe its hard to argue against the fact that Baria is hands-down more qualified than Sherman to represent the people of the great state of Mississippi in the U.S. Senate.

Baria is a Mississippi native who has faithfully served the people of the Mississippi Gulf Coast since he was first elected to the Mississippi Legislature in 2007. His record shows he fights for what he believes is right, not the "party line," and he isn't afraid to take on big business in the fight for the people of Mississippi.

Sherman wasn't even registered to vote in Mississippi until 2009, and records reveal has never even voted in the state. If you're voting purely along party lines, bear in mind that Sherman last year donated $5,000 to Republican Sen. Roger Wicker's campaign. Before that, he donated to current U.S. Attorney General Jeff Sessions' campaign when Sessions still served as a U.S. senator for Alabama. He has no experience in public office, anywhere.

Baria said he decided to run for US Senate because he was tired of seeing Mississippi in dead last in every important category, and had lost faith in our leaders to do anything about it.

"We've been sending the same people to Washington for 30 years, and we keep getting the same results. I think we need to shake things up," Baria said recently. "I think we need a fresh voice and a fresh perspective. I believe that I can be that agent of change in the state of Mississippi. We need to change the conversation in this state to a conversation where we stop talking about things that divide us and start talking about things that working families talk about around their kitchen table--the things that are important to them in their daily lives."

Baria is the best chance the Mississippi Gulf Coast has to get a voice back in the U.S. Senate.

Please vote next Tuesday, if you can. Polls will be open county-wide from 7 a.m.-7 p.m.

Disability Connection to host free Community Resource Fair

On Thursday, June 21st Disability Connection will provide a free annual Community Resource Fair for health, employment, and inclusion at the South Mall entrance of Edgewater Mall, from 10:00-1:30. Over 80 of agencies will be available to discuss the free programs available in South Mississippi, and some will have jobs. This will be an opportunity for a face-to-face with major government and nonprofit agencies.

The media frequently appeals to the community about the need for free programs to help seniors, veterans, homeless, those with disabilities and others with needs. The Gulf Coast has a myriad of programs to assist the community, but the problem is that people do not know about them.

Disability Connection produces a tool that provides this information called the Mississippi Gulf Coast Community Resource Guide. Many coast agencies use this resource, and one copy is available to agencies and churches providing resource assistance. An interactive, downloadable copy is available at www.DisabilityConnection.org.

Resources include transportation, free medical, recreation, Veteran services, health & wellness, financial services, legal services, jobs, housing, disability services, senior & children

PRCC board adopts $38.7 million budget; includes 4% raise

SEA COAST ECHO

POPLARVILLE - The Pearl River Community College Board of Trustees approved a budget of $38.7 million for the 2018-19 academic year during the regular June meeting on the Poplarville campus Tuesday.

The budget includes a 4 percent salary increase for PRCC employees, the first increase since 2015.

Said PRCC President Adam Breerwood, "Our College is blessed to have an outstanding faculty and staff that remain dedicated to serving our students. This increase is well deserved and essential in attracting and retaining premier educators and staff members who are dedicated to changing the lives of those we serve.

"Our recruitment and retention efforts across the entire College have made this increase possible. We can never lose focus that we are an institution of higher education. Student learning and career opportunities remain our top priority. We need the best possible faculty and staff to accomplish our mission. They deserve it."

This increase comes on the heels of raising minimum wage to $10 per hour for all employees in December.

Revenue projections for fiscal year 2019 reflect an increase in state funding of $503,000 due to an increase in enrollment. The enrollment increases also led to an additional $830,000 in student fees.

The board voted last month to freeze student tuition and fees at last year's level.

Tuition for a full-time student (15 hours or more) is $1,625. The hourly rate for in-state students (less than 15 hours) remains the same at $140.

"We've been very fortunate that our strong enrollment growth this year has allowed us to be able to maintain our tuition for the coming year," said Dr. Breerwood. "We recognize that student debt around the country has continued to rise. Financial challenges have served as an obstacle in achieving a college degree. We will continue to work diligently to offer a high-quality, low-cost education at Pearl River Community College."

PRCC enrolled 4,824 students last fall semester, a 6.3 percent increase over fall 2016. Spring enrollment reached 4,300 students, a 3 percent increase.

*In other news, the board recently welcomed its newest member, Teenia Perry of Henleyfield in Pearl River County. A PRCC alumnus, she succeeds the late P.W. Polk, who recently passed away.

In other business, the board:

> Approved the hiring of Zachary Howell and Caithlin Warner as recruiters for the Poplarville campus and Matt Miller as a recruiter for the Forrest County Center.

> Approved the hiring of Dr. Jessica Lindsay Miller as a speech instructor, Patrick Ochs as director of communications for athletics, Rebecca Brown as community and economic development coordinator, and Lisa Cauthern in the mathematics lab.

> During the May board meeting, approved the retirement of Chuck Abadie from the position of director of public relations, and Janet Braswell, from the position of public relations assistant, both effective June 30.

"USDA Rural Development's mission is to improve the economy and quality of life in rural America, and a critical aspect to rural prosperity is a safe and affordable water supply," said USDA Rural Development State Director, John Rounsaville. "We urge Mississippi communities

In 2016, there were 44,965 recorded suicides, up from 42,773 in 2014, according to the CDC's National Center for Health Statistics (NCHS). On average, adjusted for age, the annual U.S. suicide rate increased 24% between 1999 and 2014, from 10.5 to 13.0 suicides per 100,000 people, the highest rate in 28 years.

dence (in the 100 block of Lakeside) in reference to a domestic violence complaint" at around 1:38 a.m. Saturday, Waveland Police Chief David Allen said in a press release. "Upon arrival, officers learned a domestic had taken place where the victim suffered minor injuries, which included being strangled at some point during the incident."

Officers said Warren had fled the scene before they arrived.

"Officers also learned the suspect had assaulted two male subjects who were at a neighboring residence who heard the disturbance between the couple," Allen said. "Further investigation revealed one of the male assault victims also had his phone taken from him by the suspect. The case is still under investigation at this time."

Investigator Ronald Storey is in charge of the case, Allen said.

As of press time Tuesday, Warren was still being held without bond at the Hancock County Jail. An initial court hearing is scheduled for Aug. 2.

BATTLING THE BIG FISH: SPECKLED TROUT, SLOT RED FISH AND TRIPLE TAIL

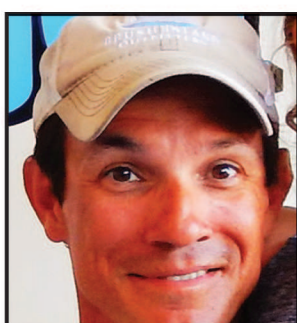

The big fish have been out in full force this week. Our main target this time of year, are the speckled trout, slot red fish, and triple tail. They do have some big fish out there, and our customers have really enjoyed battling. Almost all of these fish we catch on light tackle, making for some incredible fights.

When I say big fish, I am talking about the massive black drum, huge bull reds, and big brawling jack crevalle. Seldom do we keep any of the these "sea monsters", but people really enjoy hearing that drag scream. A quick photo, and these hefty critters are safely released. I don't think anyone will ever get sick of catching speckled trout, but sometimes it is fun to test your tackle and strength against these beasts.

We have been seeing the black drum around the near shore reefs and on the bridges in Bay St Louis. Some of these drum can get close to 50 Pounds, and are easily the most powerful fish we see. The big jack crevalle we have mostly been seeing around Cat Island. They have been mixed in with the big schools of lady fish, pogies, and mullet. The big bull reds have been all through out the Louisiana Marsh. We have been seeing them mixed in with the school trout. Even more so, if the white trout are around, the bull reds never seem to be far behind.

We catch all of the above on our light tackle spinning gear. Most of these fish you have to chase with the boat, but that always seems to make it more fun. Here is one of my favorite set ups to catch these big fellas:

Medium heavy spinning rod 30-40 Class spinning

reel (I'm a fan of the Okuma Helios spinner)

20 pound braided line

40 pound mono leader

We mostly fish popping cork rigs, and we are big fans of the Boat

Monkey floats. A 2-3 foot section of 40lb leader, and a 3/8 ounce jig head is what we throw. A good soft plastic, like the ones made locally by Matrix are a safe bet. This set up may seem a little heavy, but trust me, when these big fellas show up, you don't wanna bring a knife to a gun fight...

As always, have fun and be safe.

Tourist fights fish for 45 minutes in Bay St. Louis

Cody Feverston, of Desoto, Mo., recently caught a 50-pound black drum from the Dunbar Pier while on vacation in Bay St. Louis. He fought the fish for about 45 minutes before landing it.

Now is the time to prepare for Hurricane

SEA COAST ECHO

JACKSON, MISS. — The 2018 Atlantic Hurricane Season officially began on June 1 and will end on November 30, 2018. The Mississippi Department of Transportation (MDOT) is reminding residents, businesses and community organizations across South Mississippi to have a preparedness plan in place before a storm threatens the Mississippi Gulf Coast. With one named storm already in the books this season, residents are urged to prepare now.

“The time to prepare is now, not when a storm is being tracked,” said Transportation Commissioner Tom King.

“The first step in preparing for a hurricane is to have a plan of action. MDOT offers a variety of free resources to get started. We’re urging the public to take advantage of these resources and get a jump start on the preparation process.”

The 2018 Hurricane Evacuation Guide is an essential resource and just a click away. Order a free copy today at GoMDOT.com/maps. Guides are also available in Spanish and Vietnamese. Also available are children’s hurricane activity book, state maps, and more.

MDOT is also providing 2018 Hurricane Evacuation Kits to residents along the Gulf Coast. These kits include the evacuation guide, state map, children’s hurricane activity book, hurricane evacuation checklists, information about the Gulf Coast region and a safety tool to help motorists stranded in their vehicles.

The guide features information to assist in developing a preparedness plan such as evacuation routes, contraflow information, radio coverage areas through Mississippi Public Broadcasting and important contact information from the Mississippi Highway Patrol, American Red Cross, Mississippi Emergency Management Agency and bordering state DOTs and highway patrols.

Individuals and families will find vital resources on shelters, pet care, lodging and travel resources.

“MDOT urges the public to take action and gather the essential items they may need to safely evacuate before a hurricane,” said Melinda McGrath, P.E., MDOT executive director. “It’s important to have both supplies and important documents available for when the time comes.”

If a hurricane forces an evacuation along the Mississippi Gulf Coast, it’s important for residents to have a plan already in place. Evacuation routes will likely see a sudden increase in traffic volume. Motorists will want to be on the road with enough time to get to their destination safely.

When a hurricane is coming:

- Shut off utilities and propane tanks
 - Fill tub with water
 - Unplug appliances and electronics
 - Listen to advice from emergency officials
 - Notify neighbors and family of your evacuation plans
 - Stay with friends, relatives or at inland hotels. Go to shelters only as a last resort.
 - Leave mobile homes in any case.
- Along with how to secure homes for a hurricane, MDOT offers disaster kit checklists and instructional videos on how to get prepared at GoMDOT.com/hurricanes.

struck the Gulf Coast,” said Commissioner King. “MDOT is ready to provide support in the event of a hurricane and our workers are often the very first responders cutting the path for emergency and medical personnel to respond.”

During the storm, the public can stay updated on live travel and weather information 24/7 with MDOT’s free travel resources. Visit MDOTtraffic.com or download the MDOT Traffic Mobile App.

MDEQ Awards Solid Waste Assistance Grant to Hancock County

SEA COAST ECHO

Jackson, Miss. -- The Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ) awarded Hancock County a solid waste assistance grant of $60,000 that will be

Quality. These grants are used by local communities for programs to prevent and clean up unauthorized dumps; to aid in hiring local solid waste enforcement officers; for public education efforts on solid waste disposal and recycling; and to establish programs for the collection of white goods, bulky wastes and recyclables.

Let the warm breezes beckon, the gentle seascape calm, and the beauty and charm of our coastal communities inspire.

It’s all here for anyone who wants it, and Hancock Tourism is here to help you find it. To make that process easier, we are excited to unveil our new logo and website, “Come Play on the Bay.”

The change reflects our ongoing efforts to better coordinate with the regional tourism bureau to offer a more diverse coast-wide travel experience for everyone. Our many years of being known as Mississippi’s West Coast greatly heightened the awareness and appreciation of our westernmost coastal county, but this transition will bring added opportunities to promote the entire area. The new theme welcomes visitors and residents to explore the smaller St. Louis Bay communities that are unique and special by themselves, but are still a part of the larger gulf coast.

We feel this change is much more inclusive to Mississippi Gulf Coast tourism as a whole, and we look forward to working closely with our regional partners in promoting the beauty and bounty that our wonderful region has to offer.

4TH SUNDAY AT 4 THIS WEEKEND AT CHRIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH

Featuring Indigo Strings and the artwork of Daniel Gurneck

SEA COAST ECHO

The music begins at 4 p.m. with Art and Reception at 5 p.m. Christ Episcopal Church is located at 912 South Beach Blvd, Bay St. Louis. The event is open and free to the public.

Performing Artists

Indigo Strings is a piano trio plus vocals. Think that sounds classical? It ain't necessarily so. A unique ensemble comprised of piano, violin, and cello, topped off with a vibrant soprano presents the American Song book at its best. This confluence of classical training, the influence of tin pan alley, and the heat of New Orleans brings out the best of the American Classics.

Starting as a piano violin duo in 2015, Indigo Strings brought a new twist to hit songs of the 30s, 40s, and 50s. Expanding to include soprano and cello, the foursome evolved into a tight ensemble with a jazzy vibe. Audiences in New Orleans, Baton Rouge, and the Northshore have tapped their toes to the tunes of Indigo Strings, delighting in the music of years gone by.

Visual Artist

Daniel Gurneck is a long-time Gulf Coast resident. Quite simply, he loves art and painting. His works include a wide range of subjects; boats, portraits, some pop art, etc. The faces that he paints are intended to reflect their character as well as their humanness.

Daniel took art instructions from the late Zel McMath, of Pass Christian, MS., and some studies at the University of Southern Mississippi. His media, currently, is Acrylic, Pen & Ink, and Pencil with oils scheduled for the future.

He had worked for a time in the oil industry and was commissioned to paint the commemorative picture for the Gulf and Chevron oil companies' merger. Daniel has participated in art fairs in Ocean Springs, Long Beach, Bay St. Louis, and Pascagoula. His artwork for the "Blue Moon" competition was selected as one of the top ten entries. Biographer Katherine Clark signs ‘My Exaggerated Life: Pat Conroy,’ her oral biography of the famed southern novelist, on Thursday

SEA COAST ECHO

Pat Conroy’s memoirs and autobiographical novels contain a great deal about his life, but there is much he hasn’t revealed with readers until now. My Exaggerated Life is the product of a special collaboration between this great American author and oral biographer Katherine Clark, who recorded two hundred hours of conversations with Conroy before he passed away in 2016. In the spring and summer of 2014, the two spoke for an hour or more on the phone every day. No subject was off limits, including aspects of his tumultuous life he had never before revealed.

This oral biography presents Conroy the man, as if speaking in person, in the colloquial voice familiar to family and friends. This voice is quite different from the authorial style found in his books, which are famous for their lyricism and poetic descriptions. Here Conroy is blunt, plainspoken, and uncommonly candid. While his novels are known for their tragic elements, this volume is suffused with Conroy’s sense of humor, which he credits with saving his life. The story Conroy offers here is about surviving and overcoming the childhood abuse and trauma that marked his life. He is frank about his emotional damage—the depression, the alcoholism, the divorces, and, above all, the crippling lack of self-esteem and self-confidence. He also sheds light on the forces that saved his life from ruin. The act of writing compelled Conroy to confront the painful truths about his past, while years of therapy with a clinical psychologist helped him achieve the necessary self-awareness and understanding. As Conroy recounts his time in Atlanta, Rome, and San Francisco, along with his many years in Beaufort, South Carolina, he portrays a journey full of struggles and suffering that culminated ultimately in redemption and triumph. Although he gained worldwide recognition for his writing, Conroy believed his greatest achievement was in successfully carving out a life filled with family and friends, as well as love and happiness. In the end he arrived at himself and found it was a good place to be. Katherine Clark is the co-author of the oral biographies Motherwit: An Alabama Midwife’s Story, with Onnie Lee Logan, and Milking the Moon: A Southerner’s Story of Life on This Planet, (a finalist for a National Book Critics Circle award), with Eugene Walter. Her debut novel, The Headmaster’s Darlings, won the 2015 Willie Morris Award for Southern Fiction; it is part of her Mountain Brook novel series along with All the Governor’s Men, The Harvard Bride, and The Ex-Suicide. All four were published by the University of South Carolina Press’s Story River Books imprint, supported by founding editor Pat Conroy. Clark holds an A.B. degree in English from Harvard and a Ph.D. in English from Emory. Help pollinators with a few simple steps

BY MS. SUSAN M. COLLINS-SMITH
MSU EXTENSION SERVICE

PICAYUNE, Miss. -- Pollinators are important to flowering plants and the food supply, but dwindling numbers of some of these creatures, including monarch butterflies and bees, have captured the public’s attention. Many people want to help. But what can homeowners do to support these important pollinators? Jennifer Buchanan, senior curator at the Mississippi State University Crosby Arboretum in Picayune, shared her top three tips for creating a pollinator-friendly garden. First, include plants for all life stages. Gardens and landscapes should have host plants suitable for insects to lay eggs, nectar plants for adults to feed on and other plants to provide shelter. Only a few host plants are compatible with some species, such as butterflies and moths, so make sure to choose ones that support the target pollinator. Second, avoid using pesticides whenever possible. Instead, use natural methods, such as hand picking, to control harmful insects. If pesticides cannot be avoided, apply them carefully and do not let them drift into areas where target pollinators visit or live. Third, choose a safe area to install pollinator plants and gardens. Plant as far away from the road as possible to help pollinators avoid collisions with vehicles. Insects are not the world’s only pollinators.

Birds and small mammals, such as mice and bats, also transfer pollen from plant to plant. “There are lots of categories of pollinators that go beyond just insects,” said Buchanan. “Hummingbirds don’t need host plants, but they do need a safe place to raise their young and a source of food. Be mindful of which species you want to attract, and choose a variety of plants based on their needs.” Water is a must for all wildlife. Birds love bird baths, but butterflies prefer very shallow water. Fill a saucer with pebbles, and add water. Butterflies also need minerals, which can be added to this water. “You can dissolve a product called Instant Ocean or kitchen salt into the water before pouring into the saucer,” Buchanan said. “If you use kitchen salt, make sure it is pure and that there isn’t any iodine or other additive in it.” Support for pollinators can be done in lots of forms, from entire landscapes to a few plants on the patio, Buchanan said. “A trend in some areas of the country is to turn the yard into a prairie instead of having a landscaped yard,” Buchanan said. “But even if you live in an apartment, you can plant a few containers that will attract birds, bees and butterflies. It can be that simple.” For those who want to help bolster bee numbers, planting a diverse array of high-quality nectar plants will do the trick, said Audrey Sheridan, an Extension and research associate. Gardeners should pay attention to flower color and shape. Honeybees cannot see red flowers very well, but they can see a wide range of colors, Sheridan said. “Honeybees are most attracted to white, blue and violet flowers,” she said. “You can group these together without disturbing honeybees’ habit of visiting similar looking flowers, which is called flower constancy and helps bees maximize their foraging efforts. Bumblebees also do this but not as much. Solitary bees don’t exhibit this behavior and tend to feed on a narrower variety of plant species.” Bees also choose plants by flower shape because of the length of their tongues. Cellophane and yellow-faced bees have short tongues -- less than 3 mm. Honeybees have medium-length tongues -- up to 8 mm -- and can gather nectar from variously shaped blooms. Bees with long tongues, such as bumblebees and carpenter bees, can reach into long, tubular blooms, Sheridan said. “Because of the flower constancy behavior exhibited by honeybees and other social bees, it is best to plant individual species in large groups or drifts,” Sheridan said. “If gardeners don’t have the space for this, or if they don’t want that particular look, they can plant small groups of the same species throughout the flower bed. That pattern makes it easy for these bees to hop from one group to the next.” Honeybees love herbs, such as basil, oregano, thyme, rosemary and sage. Regional native plants will help the native solitary bees that are adapted to these plants. Some good choices include coneflower, coreopsis, goldenrod, yarrow and American holly. For more information about creating suitable habitat for pollinators along with a list of suggested plants for hummingbirds and butterflies, consult Extension Publication 2402, “Establishing a Backyard Wildlife Habitat.” For more information about supporting bees, consult Extension Publication 2976, “Gardening for Beneficial Bees.” Pollinators will be featured during the June 25 session of the Mississippi State Trial Gardens storytelling series, The Story of Plants and People. Speaker Harvey Cotton will present The Story of the Birds and Bees: Protecting Pollinator Health from 6 to 8 p.m. at the Bost Conference Center on the MSU campus.

People can take a few easy steps to help support pollinator populations, including planting for all life stages. Butterflies need host plants to lay their eggs, nectar plants for energy as adults and other plants for shelter.

And Mississippians count on their newspapers to keep apprised of public notice advertising.

Half of Mississippi adults recall reading or seeing public notice advertising in a local or state newspaper. And almost half (46%) of adults who have seen public notice advertising prefer to receive them in a printed newspaper, much higher than any other source. Most Mississippians (87%) say keeping the public informed through public notices and legal advertising is an important requirement for government agencies. And the preferred method of receiving these notices is in a printed newspaper along with their associated websites.
